1. Fundamental compulsory courses (14 credits), including Chinese (10 credits) and English Reading (4 credits). For Chinese, Chinese for general students (4 credits) is required, and the rest of the 6 credits for Chinese must be replaced by the Chinese courses listed in the classic field of general education (excluded from the credits for liberal art program).

2. Seven liberal art elective courses (14 credits) of any fields (exclude the liberal art elective courses specific to Chinese-proficient students).

3. Physical education course (0 credit): a compulsory course for freshmen and sophomores (threshold – 60 points or more).

B. Because of class schedule conflict for the compulsory courses opened by the departments at KMU or the unavailability of the courses for the original grade level, the international students enrolled after 105 academic year (including students transferred from other schools or transferring to any departments at KMU during the current academic year) must accept the counseling offered by the Center for Languages and Culture to take the fundamental courses suitable closely to their proficient level for replacement.
